Adamu Umar

Software Engineer

SUMMARY

I'm an experienced software engineer, active in the field since 2010, with a strong passion for building smart, effective, and forward-thinking solutions. With a solid background in computer science and over a decade of hands-on experience, I've developed deep expertise across multiple programming languages and modern technologies. Over the years, I have successfully delivered numerous projects as a freelance developer, working with diverse clients and industries. I thrive in collaborative environments and take pride in producing reliable, high-quality software that meets both client goals and business objectives.
